Fund Manager's Comment

The CIF's return for Q1 2025 was 12.45% an increase from 9.64% performance level in Q4 2024. We saw stability in the exchange rate and inflation rates cool amid rebasing of the Gross Domestic Products and Consumer Price Index. Hence, there was gradual reduction of the interest rate across the yield curve. Nonetheless, the downside risks were to lower interest rate like disruption to global disinflation and Trump's economic policies. Thus, we quickly keyed into long-tenured T-bills securities and some short to mid-tenured bonds to lock in rate and for possible capital gains as we trade away those bonds. On the fixed-income side, we were very cautious purchasing CPs in the first half of 2025.

Strategy

In Q2 2025 we expect bond yields for the short to mid-end tenors to increase marginally amid trade war fears; hence, our strategy would be to lock-in high rate(particularly at the point of inflection) in that space, especially for CIF portfolio. Also, we expect money market rate and yield on various T-bills maturities to be a little higher than current levels. Hence, we would exploit this situation to further key into T-bills securities (longer maturities) and lock in rate for sale later in 2025.

We would consider only high-quality mid-tenor CPs when interest rate environment becomes less risky for corporates.

We plan to position in bonds (to hold some to maturity and others for trading) amid expectation of high volatility in rate...
